VILLISCA, Ia., Family and Two Guests Slaughtered as They Slept

BLOODHOUNDS FOLLOW TRAIL

Local Police Believe Slayer Is One Who Killed Burnhams and Waynes

VILLISCA, Ia., June 10.—Twenty-four hours after the murder of the entire family of Joseph Moore and two guests, eight in all, which occurred Sunday night, the authorities have been unable to secure a trace of the murderer.

The murderer killed every person in the house and escaped without discovery. It is apparent he had a key to a door of the home, because all doors and windows were found locked. A revised list of the victims follows:

JOSEPH MOORE;
MRS. MOORE;
HERMAN MOORE, aged 11;

CATHERINE MOORE, aged 9;

BOYD MOORE, aged 7;

PAUL MOORE, aged 6;

LENA STILLINGS, aged 15;

INA STILLINGS, aged 9.

The first intimation of the crime was when a clerk in the implement store of Mr. Moore went to the Moore home to ascertain the cause of Mr. Moore's delay in reaching the business. Finding the house locked, the window shades all down and no one about, he notified the neighbors and forced entrance.

Victims Did Not Struggle.
The dead people, with one exception, were found in their beds in natural states of sleeping, and until the flushed condition of their heads and the bloody and brain-soaked pillows were discovered, it was impossible for the searchers to believe that anything was wrong.

A bloody axe was found in an upstairs room where it had been left by the assassin.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore were in one bed, the clothing of which was not the least disturbed. In another bed were two of the boys, the sister occupied a third, and the youngest boy was alone in a smaller bed. In neither instance was the bedding of the children disturbed.

Bloodhounds Follow Scent.
The Misses Stillings occupied a room in another part of the house, and the girl has a cut on an arm and was in such a position as to indicate she had awakened before the attack and that there was a short struggle.

Bloodstains which will require the work of experts will be handled in relation with the crime, including the finger prints of the murderer, are the only clue the officers have to work upon. Bloodhounds tonight were taken to the Moore home. Within 10 minutes they found a scent which took them over a circuitous route to the edge of the town and thence to the banks of the Nodaway river.

Entering a deep woods along the river the hounds led their followers over several miles of rough timber roads.

SPRINGS MURDERER IS IN IOWA, THINK POLICE

The murder in Villisca in every way resembles the slaughter of the families of Arthur J. Burnham and H. F. Wayne here September 17 last and police and detectives both in Colorado Springs and in various other cities, are inclined to believe that it is the same man who is committing the crimes.

So far as is known the Villisca murderer was committed in exactly the same manner as the one here, and similar tragedies in other places, which (of) had closely on the wiping out of the two families in this city.

In Villisca, as here, the murderer chose Sunday night to do his work, and the most of the other cases have been committed on the same night, although in many cases the murders were discovered until several days later. In none of the cities has a clew been recovered, except in Ellsworth, Kan., and this proved to be very doubtful.

The police here are strongly inclined to believe that it is the same man who is committing all of the murders. They think it is either a maniac or a religious fanatic.

The fiend is crazy enough to have that the police call a death sentence, and in every case he has carefully covered his trail, never leaving so much as one clew. Only a crazy man, the police say, could do this.

Although it is guesswork on the part of the authorities here, they are hoping it is the same man, "for if it is we will surely be caught in time, perhaps soon, and that would end all of the slaughter," they say.

San Quentin Jute Mill Shut Down Because of Plot by Convicts to Burn and Wreck It

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., June 10.—The state board of prison directors met to consider tonight a far more serious situation than the information vouchsafed yesterday indicated, in connection with the outbreak in which one convict was shot dead and two were wounded.

The reason the prison jute mill was shut down today is that the board received information of a plot to fire the jute and wreck the mill.

The reason live steam was turned into the kitchen yesterday afternoon is that the rioters were battering at the doors of the locked cupboards in which the long butcher knives are kept.

An occasional yell in the night answered by a cry from another cell marked the end of the outbreak.

Shortly before dawn a snarl arose from the cells. The guards on duty in the prison yards passed from cell to cell.

"We'll turn the steam hose on you if we hear another sound," they said. Quiet was restored and when the men fell into line for mess they were silent and cowed.

The ringleaders of yesterday's outbreak were kept in their cells. Reserve guards patrol the yard and jute mill and extra men have been stationed on the prison walls.

Warden Hoyte could not say positively today what steps would be taken for the punishment of the leaders. The prison board he said probably would hold a special meeting today to consider the case.

DR. HILL GIVES ANNUAL PHI BETA KAPPA ADDRESS

Class Day Exercises—Perkins hall, 10 o'clock

Jungle Exercises—June 10, 10 a.m.

Senior Reception—Campus, 4 to 6 o'clock

Phi Beta Kappa Address—Perkins hall, 8 o'clock

The above was the program given yesterday, the fifth day of commencement week, at Colorado college.

The Phi Beta Kappa address was given last night in Perkins hall by Dr.

DR. E. C. HILLS

E. S. Hills, professor of romance languages at the college. He spoke on "The Pikes Peak Region in Song and Legend."

One of the most interesting features yesterday was the class day exercises, given in Perkins hall and at the flag pole on the campus. Harry L. Black of Victor was the class orator. The college flag is always in the care of the senior class, and the prettiest part of the class day exercises is the handing down of the flag from the graduating class to the next senior class.

The full program of the exercises follows:

In Perkins Hall,

Vocal solo.....Eleanor Thomas

Class oration.....Harry L. Black

Class song.....Double quartet

Class poem.....E. G. Clark

At Flag Pole,

Noncompulsory chapel.....

Class drama....."Stingin' and Stringem". Class history

Class song.....Chorus

Phi Beta Kappa Address.....

In the Phi Beta Kappa address, Professor Hills spoke first of the poets who have made Colorado Springs their home, especially Helen Hunt Jackson, Edith Colby Banfield and Ernest Wherry, and read some of their lyrics. He also read some charming little poems by Mrs. Mary G. Slocum, Mrs. Virginia McClurg, Stanley Wood and others, all descriptive of this region, or relating to it. The speaker closed this part of the address by reading a few short poems of his own composition.

Professor Hills read eight legends.

The longest and one of the most interesting was taken from Ruxton's account of his journey to the Rocky mountains in 1847. In this rare little volume the author gives the legend told him by the Indians of the bitter and the sweet springs of Manitou.

Protest Going of Fourth Cavalry Because New Soldiers Do Not Know Conditions

EL PASO, June 10.—Scores of telegrams have been passing between the local chamber of commerce and the war department at Washington relative to the departure of the Fourth United States cavalry from its border station here to Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

People of El Paso fear that a crisis in the Mexican situation is in hand and that the American border is likely to be the scene of many disturbances, if the rebel army is driven out of Chihuahua. The removal of the Fourth cavalry is being protested by residents here on the ground that the Second cavalry, coming from the Philippines, contains many recruits, and that its soldiers are unfamiliar with the diplomatic difficulties of relations between Mexico and the United States on the boundary line.

INVESTIGATORS WORK EXPLAINED

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—Warning witnesses to keep out of the state and notifying prospective jurors in time to evade service when they were thought to be unfavorable to the defense were part of his duties as "investigator" for the McNamara defense, according to F. J. Conney, who took the stand today in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow for jury bribery.

Under direct examination Conney said that he had reported to Mr. Darrow that Bert Franklin "talked too much" that Franklin had said to him, "They will never convict J. B. while Bain is on the jury."

Darrow also is under indictment for bribing Robert E. Bain, the first juror swaying in the trial of James B. McNamara.

The defense made a determined but futile effort to prevent Conney from testifying to facts other than those directly bearing on the Lockwood case on which Darrow is now being tried. The adverse ruling by Judge Hutton admits any evidence tending to show alleged corruption of witnesses called in the McNamara case.

Conney, who testified that he had been engaged in settlement work in Chicago prior to entering the employ of the McNamara defense, said that early in October he had been sent out of the state to see Bert Hannerstrom, a brother-in-law of Mr. Darrow. He told him, he said, in Salt Lake City where he told Hannerstrom that Darrow wished him to remain away until the Dickleman matter blew over. Dickleman was a witness for the prosecution in the McNamara case and was said to have been spirited away by agents of the McNamara defense.

Conney said that he returned to Los Angeles the first week in November and soon after his return had a conversation with Bert Franklin in which Franklin had told him about J. B. Bain. The witness said that he immediately reported the substance of the conversation to Darrow.

Conney testified that until November 15, 1911, he had been working under the direction of Mr. Darrow and Mr. Harrington. On that date, he said, he was notified by Mr. Darrow to report to Franklin for "work" on the jury, and that he did so.

During the present sulphur spring was only sweeter and the favorite drinking place of the Indians. The Shoshones and the Comanches had always been the best of friends, but one day a man from each of these two tribes happened to come to the spring to drink at the same time. The Comanche drank from the stream that flowed out of the bubbling well, while the Shoshone drank directly from the fountain head. This set angered the Comanche that to show the Shoshone, whose head fell into the spring, and lay there. Then there arose from the spring the spirit of the father of the two tribes, for they were related. Stretching out a war club toward the frightened murderer, the frightened thus addressed him:

Slayer Accused.

"Accursed of my tribe!" This day thou hast severed the link between the mightiest nations of the world, while the blood of the brave Shoshone cries to the Mountain for vengeance. May the water of thy tribe be rank and bitter in thy throat!

Thus saying, and swinging his ponderous war club round his head, he dashed it on the breast of the Comanche, who fell bleeding into the spring, which ran out to the present moment, crimson red and crimson.

The good Wankanakee, however, to remember the memory of the Shoshone warning, who was renowned in his tribe for valor and nobleness of soul, went with the same avenging intent, but with the same avenging intent, past out of sight of this young and forthwith the pack turned into a grand, clear basin, which quickly filled with bubbling, sparkling water, than which no thirsty man would break a sword or a scimitar.

An interesting myth given by the Indians was the idea of the creation of the world, according to which the Great Father first made Pike Peak, upon which he stepped to descend to the earth. This he then made into mud nests, trees and flowers, is Indian story.

Professor Hill also told the myths of Ernest Whittaker, poet, and his twin sister, Venus, keeping Mr. Whittaker warm, but adding descriptive matter. These are the great legends of the people of Polar Bear Country, especially dangerous, the Three, the dragon of the birds, and the Living Springs of Manzanita.

The sage, born under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Taftaferro, sang two colorful songs, one with words and music by Mrs. Maudie McFerran Price, the other with words by Dr. Hill and music by Emma Theresa Moses, a distinguished Chicago composer.

One sensational statement after another is being made in connection with "Tonic Vita," the new tonic that is accomplishing such remarkable results in Colorado Springs. Mr. A. L. Lough, a well-known barber of No. 4000, west street, had this to say:

"After using about one bottle of 'Tonic Vita' I feel a remarkable change in my condition. I had a stomach and nerve disorder and was generally run down, but feel now as though the remedy is going to entirely eliminate these troubles. I was very much surprised at the quick action of the tonic, and can certainly recommend its use to any one troubled with these ailments."

"'Tonic Vita' is now being introduced in Colorado Springs by specialists who can be found each day between the hours of 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. at the Robinson Drug Company.

"A tired, dragging feeling of the body, a sluggish mind and dull memory, depression of spirits, nervousness, stomach trouble, weak back, cold feet, headaches and bowel troubles are among the numerous symptoms of a condition from which thousands are suffering here in Colorado Springs," said one of these specialists recently.

THE CHEYENNE AVENUE QUESTION

AFTER three or four months of agitation the question of whether Cheyenne Avenue shall be closed in accordance with the plans of the School Board is still unsettled. The Board has considered various arrangements of the buildings, one of which providing for a passageway for pedestrians, has been indorsed by the Chamber of Commerce. Petitions for and against closing the street to vehicles have been circulated and extensively signed. The advantages of greater efficiency and economy in the building and operation of the new school plant which would be attained by closing the street are too great to be lightly disregarded. On the other hand there is much that is sound in the contrary views expressed by Charles Mulford Robinson, the city-planning expert who in his recent report on Colorado Springs strongly opposed the closing of Cheyenne Avenue.

Several weeks ago The Gazette indorsed the plan recommended by the Chamber of Commerce of closing the street to vehicles but of leaving open a passageway for pedestrians, with the restriction that proper steps should be taken to make sure that this passageway would not be closed at some future time by another school board. In other words, we believe that the Council should cooperate with the Board in its efforts to make the largest use of the school grounds, but we believe that a passageway should be kept open, with building intervening, not only in the immediate future but permanently.

But whoever considers Mr. Robinson's report carefully and impartially will probably admit that even this compromise is not altogether satisfactory. Cheyenne Avenue is not one of the principal thoroughfares of the city, nor do we admit that its actual closing would seriously impede traffic or work a hardship on the public. The only consideration which appeals to us strongly as an argument against closing it is the fact that it is a diagonal street and as such is of great value in relieving the severally monotonous rectangular plan of the city.

In the interminable discussion of this subject a suggestion has recently been made which may be the happy solution that everybody is looking for. It is that the present plan of leaving open a passageway for pedestrians be enlarged to include a narrow driveway for vehicles with a gate at each end so that it could be closed to traffic during school hours, or from 8 to 12. Pedestrians could of course use the grounds at all times, and a strip fifty feet wide would be sufficient for both the driveway and the foot path.

The merits of this plan are various. It would not interfere with the proposed arrangement of the buildings. It would afford free access to the grounds to pedestrians at all times, and would exclude vehicles only for five hours of the day, or five days of the week during the thirty-eight school weeks of the year. The exclusion of vehicles during school hours would satisfy the objections of the Board based on the danger to the pupils from unrestricted traffic through the grounds. The vista would not be broken, but would remain much as it is now except that it would be improved by the buildings on both sides of the driveway. At each end of the portion of the street thus treated the distance between the buildings would be only a little more than the fifty feet left for the driveway and walk, but everywhere else the space would be much broader with plenty of room for ornamental treatment with grass plots, etc.

It is plain that no plan could be devised which would be satisfactory to everybody, and whatever solution of the problem is made must necessarily be a compromise. But it ought to be the most reasonable compromise attainable, one which will best serve the ends desired by the School Board with the least sacrifice of the convenience of the public. And the plan here suggested appears to possess this merit.

DAILY DOINGS

LAST summer the Chamber of Commerce, through its advertising committee, tried the experiment of publishing weekly a guide book of the Pikes Peak Region, chiefly for the information of visitors. This book, "Daily Doings," was published until the close of the tourist season. Because of the accuracy and completeness of its information and its wide distribution it supplied a want which had long existed and which no other publication could fill.

The first issue of "Daily Doings" for the present season was published yesterday and it will be continued weekly until the middle of September. The booklet has been enlarged and improved in many ways and adds much to the usefulness of the guide for accurate information as to where to go and what to see. It contains complete lists of hotels and boarding houses, a street directory, up-to-date time tables, baggage and carriage rates, descriptions of the various points of interest and how to reach them, and a daily program of special trips, excursions and amusement events. Best of all the information is accurate and unprejudiced, because the publication is issued by the Chamber of Commerce. "Daily Doings" has already made a place for itself as an up-to-date handbook of the Pikes Peak Region, and its continued publication is further evidence of the enterprise of the Chamber of Commerce in contributing to the convenience of our summer visitors.

PHIL STEWART'S CANDIDACY.

From the Durango Democrat.

Phil B. Stewart's gubernatorial boom is not manifesting any symptoms of laying down for other booms. The Colorado Springs man is a progressive from the Rocky Mountain Herald.

Hon. Phil B. Stewart has long been a warm and personal friend of Roosevelt. The followers of the former claim that the nomination of Teddy for president, which now seems to be an admitted fact, will make Stewart the logical gubernatorial candidate in Colorado.

Mr. Stewart is a true Republican, capable of being the average candidate, national and progressive in his political views, fixed as a prophet in his convictions, ready as a Lincoln upon any matter presenting itself, and clear as a hound's tooth, just why should not a man like this be fit for the governor's chair?

From the North Park Times.

It is said that Theodore Roosevelt will be in Colorado in August and makes some speeches favoring the candidacy of Philip B. Stewart for governor. It's all right for Ted to come, but when the people of this state see and hear Phil Stewart, that's all that will be necessary to get them to vote for him. Phil Stewart will do the state what Arnold did to Denver.

From the Ryematting News.

Philip B. Stewart, Roosevelt's personal friend and leader among progressive Republicans, has begun an aggressive campaign for the nomination for governor of Colorado. Mr. Stewart is one of the other men among the progressives and no doubt will attract a large following. He has started systematic inquiry into the conditions in Colorado which seem to demand reforms in state management and has personal representatives gathering data in every county.

Mr. Stewart is interested in Grand County having made investments heavily in Grand County properties during the present year. It is expected that he will visit Kremmling in a short time.

From the Grand Junction News.

One of the most remarkable features of the campaign of Philip B. Stewart for Colorado Springs for the gubernatorial nomination is the Republican ticket has been the widespread popularity that his statement has received from papers all over the state. It has been commented upon very widely and very favorably.

In his platform Mr. Stewart took an unequivocal stand for the elimination of the vicious assembly clauses of the direct primary law put into the law by the "bosses" to perpetuate boss control, for the enactment of a right public utilities act on the Wisconsin model, a comprehensive workingman compensation act, and the recall of all elected officials and certain important appointed ones.

Upon this platform Mr. Stewart is receiving the support of the Republicans of the rank and file in every county in the state. It is an essentially and fundamentally a Republican declaration of principles and upon it he will not only be nominated but elected.

MONEY RELICS OF THE LOST CAUSE.

From the Boston Evening Transcript.

The announcement that Secretary McVeagh will distribute the mass of Confederate currency, which has been kept in the treasury vaults for more than 45 years, among the public libraries of the country is regarded by a contemporary as likely to fill the long-felt want of the nation. Our contemporary observes that millions of people now living in this country have never seen more paper of the Confederate States of America. Millions is a large word to use in this connection, since Confederate money was brought home to almost every Union soldier returning from the war, and in many households specimens of the somewhat crude art of the Confederate engravers, as exercised on currency, may be found to this day. It is really nothing wonderful if these individual collections of the Confederacy's notes and bonds number scores of thousands, for certainly there was no lack of material.

Probably no ingenuous government in the world ever in the same time printed and put out a larger quantity of irredeemable currency and doubtful obligations.

The Confederacy almost from the very start was chasing prices with the printing press. As prices advanced under the influence of war and the blockade, the Confederate treasury printed more bills. The net circulation rose from a nominal figure of about one million dollars in July, 1861, by leaps and bounds. In the closing months of 1862 the face value of the notes in circulation was at least seven hundred million dollars. From thence on there was no diminution and the efforts of the Confederate government to counteract the redundancy of currency were unavailing. The exact total of note and bond issues put forth by the government at Richmond is a matter of conjecture even to this day. Moreover, besides the Confederate government the several states constituting the Confederacy issued notes of their own. In fact, Alabama sent out $10,000,000 in state notes even before Sumter was fired on. Cities followed suit and such industrial corporations as could struggle along still further complicated the situation by issuing promissory notes.

All this time as prices went up, the real value of the Confederate currency declined. In 1863 a Confederate dollar was worth 6 cents in gold. After that value whatever. The money with which they were paid became bitter leat to the Confederate soldiers. Strict conservatives to everything, the Confederates would not have a legal tender at all. The result was currency confusion everywhere. Confederate bonds, as distinct from Confederate notes, did have a value, a very slight one it is true, many years after the collapse of the Confederacy. The notion took possession of European financiers that by some pell-mell turn in the United States the Confederate debt might be recognized. Large quantities of bonds were purchased on European accounts in this country, even in the late '80s. The going price for a time was $1 for a bond, without regard to its denomination. Such an immense quantity of bonds came forth in answer to this offer that American bankers suspecting counterfeiting ceased to deal in them. In Frankfurt and in London there must be hoards of Confederate bonds, which is they would bring even a small percentage of their face value would make their holders comfortably well off, if not rich.

Rare Relic Is Presented to the Pioneer Society

Mrs. Margaret T. Adams widow of the Indian fighter General Charles Adams has presented the El Paso County Pioneer Society with a rare relic—a portrait of Henry Clay 4x6 inches embroidered from the hair of the celebrated statesman when it was turning 18. It is the work of J. A. Hietzel of El Paso. The work is so finely executed that it has the appearance of a steel engraving.

Adams also has given the collection a hammered silver dish supposed to have been made by the Indians. It was exhumed from an old church near Oruru, Bolivia.

FOUR TITLED FOREIGNERS ARRIVED AT ANTLERS

June 10—The Pikes Peak region hotel has heralded the approach of visiting birds and by the tenth of fifth day it has not been uncommon to see several dozen of them bunting around the Antlers hotel. However, this year is an exception and few June birds have put in their appearance.

Instead June heralded the approach of nobility to the Pikes Peak region and yesterday the tenth day four counts were registered at the Antlers. During the preceding 10 days numerous counts barons and others of varying degrees of nobility registered at the hotel saw the sights and departed.

The four counts now at the Antlers represent two countries, Germany and Austria. Count Hans Sauermaier of Moenchien and Count Helfong of Berlin and Count Scherl and Count Sahn both of Vienna. The four counts are traveling in three separate parties, the two from Austria being together and it was only a coincidence that they happened to come to Colorado Springs at the same time.

Count Sauermaier, the son of one of the world's leading horse magicians in Europe, is in office in the German army and holds many European records in automobile racing. He possesses five first prizes won in the international auto races in Berlin and Paris, and still holds the record for an hour run made two years ago.

The count declares that American girls are the prettiest in the world and although he is highly impressed with the country customs and ideas he places the girls first.

Count Helfong also an officer in the German army.

Mam'zelle, a French actress comes to America looking for her uncle. She meets Tarleton R. Tupper (James Hawley), a married man who falls in love with her. The second act is laid at a vaudeville theater where Mam'zelle is playing. In the audience is the lost uncle and Tupper's wife. Things happen that set the real audience in hysterics with laughter. Songs and dances introduced in the second act by Miss Shirley and Miss Knott are far above the acts seen on many vaudeville circuits.

The entire cast supporting Mr. Hawley is doing clever work this week. To see 'Mam'zelle' would be an evening of amusement well spent.

The cast follows:

Tarleton R. Tupper . . . Mr. Hawley
Lionel Leslie . . . Joe C. Berry
Col. Biram Poster . . . T. M. Castlemore
Francis . . . James Guistin
